Richardson International Ambassador Program

As part of the plan to expand Richardson's international business development efforts, Mike Skelton, Vice President of International Business Development for the Richardson Chamber of Commerce and the Director of the Mayor's Office of International Business, has developed an "International Ambassador" program. Local business, academic and community leaders that travel abroad and would like to promote the city of Richardson to their businesses, governmental, or business association contacts abroad are encouraged to apply.

The program will provide our citizen Ambassadors with information and marketing materials and personalized training about the benefits of living, working and locating a business in Richardson that they can provide to their overseas contacts.

"Richardson has a terrific resource in our loyal community, business and academic leaders, says Mike Skelton. Many of these individuals travel the world on business or personal adventures and have fantastic contacts overseas that could ultimately provide new business opportunities for the city. The Richardson International Ambassador program will allow me to work with these individuals to expand our global reach and spread our message."
